Helen Mohr

Helen oversees the operations of Nvolv, leveraging a sagacity gained over the last two decades in project management, logistics, and administration roles. She taps into her organizational, creative, persuasive, and mind-reading skills on a daily basis to coordinate the firm's activities, act as a liaison to clients, and ensure their experiences engaging with Nvolv are positive and productive.

Previously Helen worked as the executive assistant to Bob Marcus while he was serving as co-founder and managing partner at Brimstone Consulting Group. Helen managed project administration and scheduling for Bob and was the first point of contact for consultant and client inquiries.

Helen has a varied background. She has been the owner and operator of a company called Type A Event, which specializes in logistical support for nonprofit organizations. She also supported the chief people officer at Waste Management, Inc., the largest environmental solutions provider in North America. In addition, Helen has 23 years of service in various roles within network distribution of one of the original American telephone companies, Southwestern Bell.

She studied Business Administration at the Dallas Baptist University in Dallas, Texas and currently lives in Surprise, Arizona.
